

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION MANAGEMENT CONCENTRATION

ORGANIZATIONAL BEHAVIOR AND HUMAN RESOURCES

HR professionals find, develop, support, and reward talent while engaging in practices to cultivate the desired company culture.

In the management concentration, students delve into the various roles of leaders and their impact within organizations. They gain insights into navigating diverse scenarios, from effectively managing individuals in competitive environments to establishing strategic alliances in corporate settings.

In the realm of organizational behavior and human resources, students learn the people side of business including having a command of the employee lifecycle: recruiting, hiring, training, performance management, and separation. Class formats incorporate a blend of case studies, experiential learning, and classroom experiments, engaging students actively in the learning process.
